ABC Search

Meet Paws! He's your guide in Jobland, so he's joined us here. Tag along with him to learn all about the world of work. You'll learn about the jobs you see every day and discover some new jobs.

You'll soon learn that Paws is pretty friendly. He'll help you think about your goals and what you want from a career. Does that sound like serious business? Let Paws show you around and you'll have fun on the way.

Jobland is a big place, so it's divided into areas like neighborhoods. We call those areas career clusters. All of the careers in one cluster will have some things in common.

If you like one career in a cluster, you might like some of the other careers, too. Exploring career clusters is a great way to look at careers that might interest you.

Career Paths

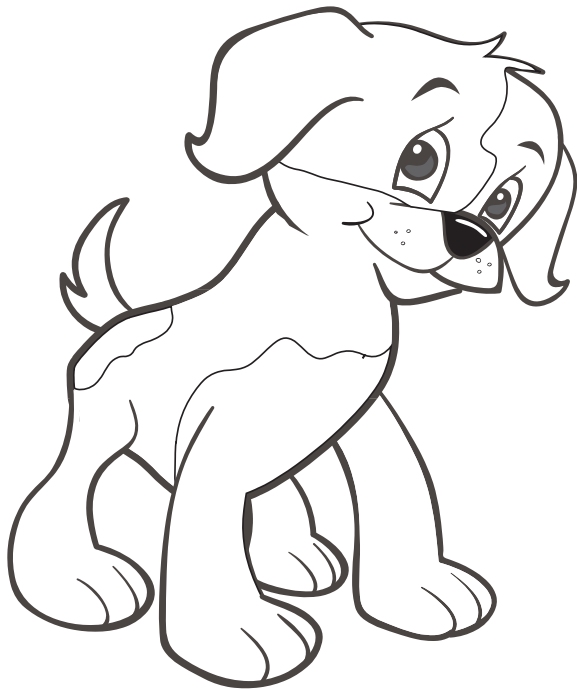

Your career path isn't always a straight line. Many people change jobs, or even careers, as they go through their lives. One hundred years ago, people often had one job for their entire lives. This isn't always true anymore. You might change as you grow older. Your goals might change. And careers can change too.

Interesting Careers

You'll be happier in your career if you're doing something that interests you. You will spend a lot of time at work, so you want your job to be something that you enjoy. You also want to think about how your career will fit with the other things in your life -- things like a family or your hobbies.

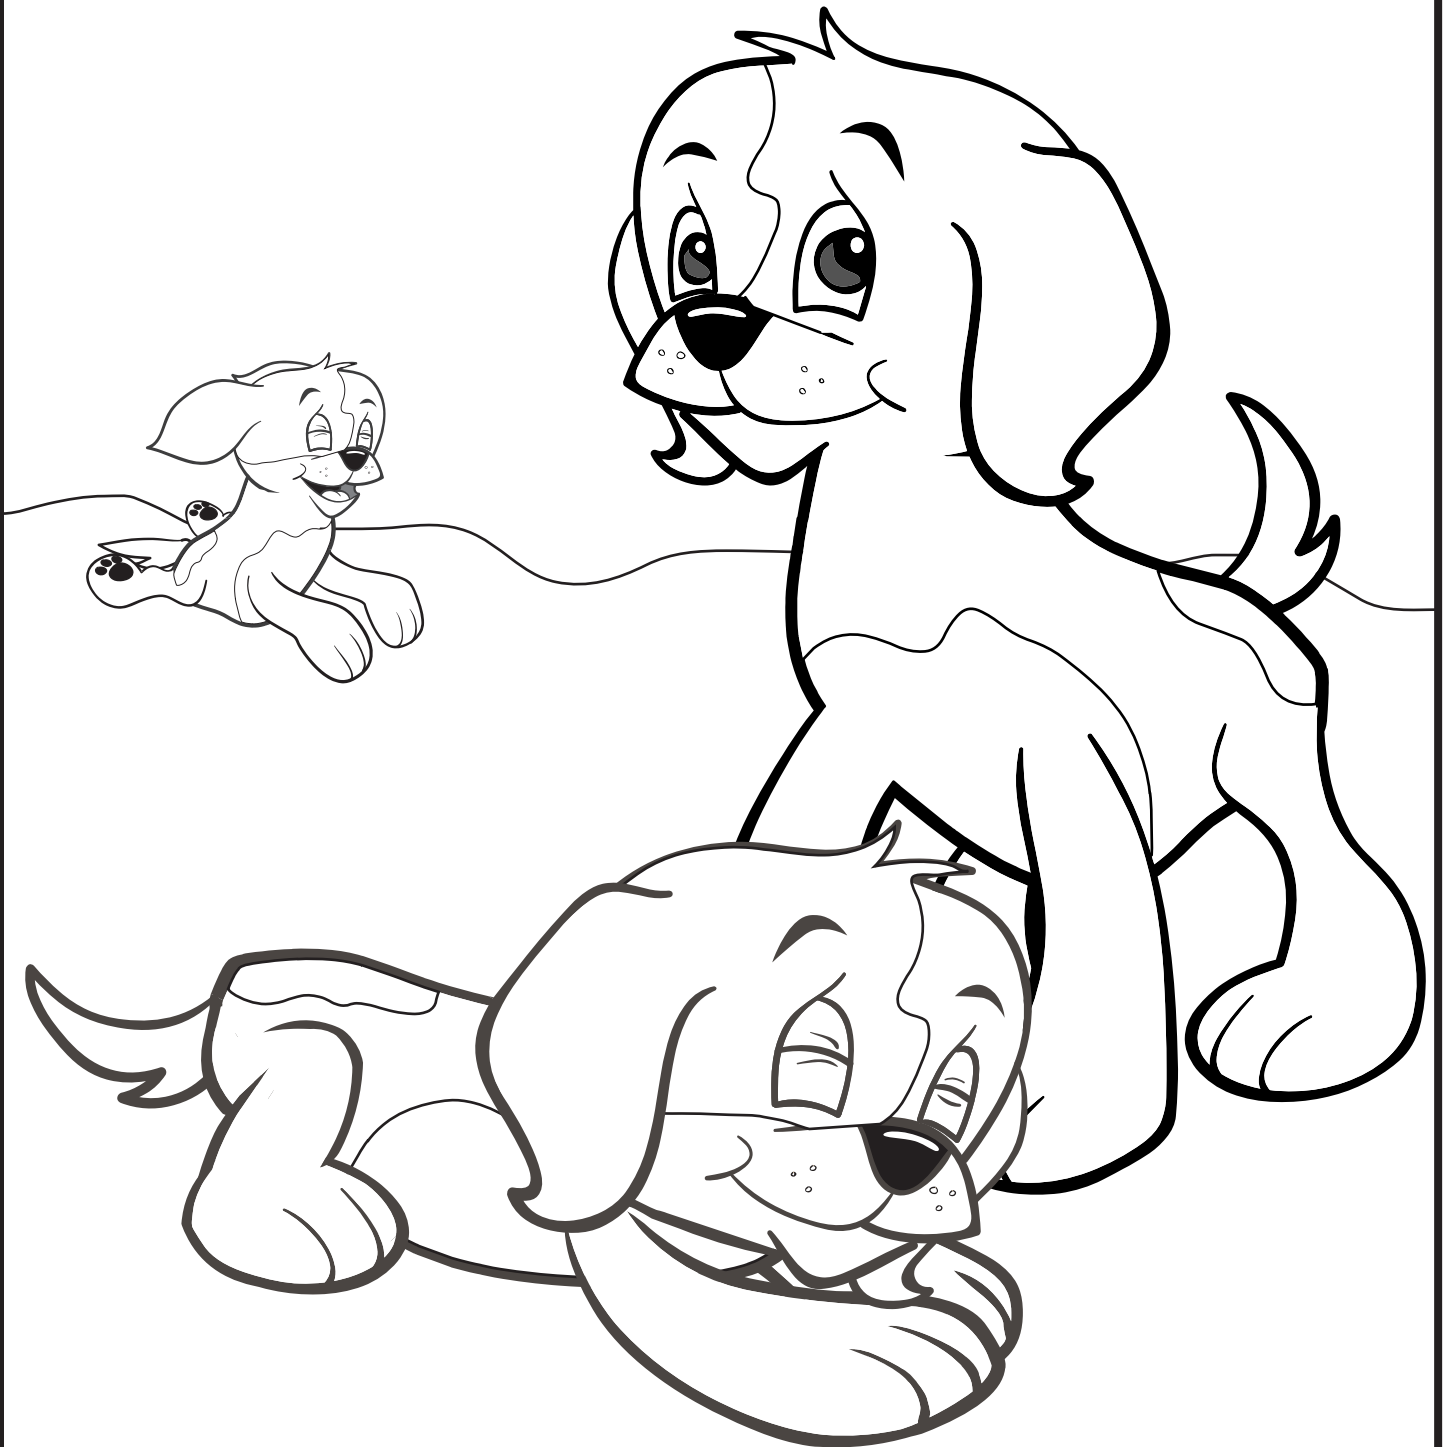

Which jobs do you think are interesting? Make a list of the most interesting careers – in your opinion!

Career Values

Your values are things that are important to you. If your job fits with your values, you will be happier when you go to work.

There are many different values when it comes to a career, so your values might be different than your friends' values. That's normal! The important thing is what YOU want from your career.

Proclamation

Let's think a bit about what we've learned so far. You've learned about the value of planning for a career that can help you have the kind of life you want to have. That's great!

Now it's time to start taking action on what you've learned. We'll start with a promise to work hard to put your plans into action.

I, _____, promise to work hard to reach my goals. I will stay in school and focus on learning as much as I can.

I will think about the careers that interest me and I will have a clear plan for the future. I will research all the options in my plan and ask for help when I need it.

I am willing to work to make my dreams come true!

Dear parent:

Thanks for using the Paws in Jobland activity book! This book is designed to introduce your child to the world of work through fun activities. By helping your child as they go through the book, you'll have opportunities to engage them in discussions about their goals. Encourage them to ask you any questions they might have.

As your child works through this book, they will have opportunities to start thinking about their goals for their life. They'll consider their values and how those values can fit into their career plans. We explain the diversity of careers in today's workplace and help them explore the ones that might interest them.

These activities are just a starting point in what will be a lifelong learning process for your child!

If you want to continue exploring with your child, you'll find more activities at:
